

DIALOGUE Symposium March 2013

DIALOGUE Symposium- Glasgow (Scotland), 22 March 2013

The DIALOGUE Symposium was a one-day event, during which the DIALOGUE network discussed with invited experts and local ULLL researchers, ULLL practitioners and learners the link between research and practice in (U)LLL.

The symposium aimed at:

- Developing an understanding of the importance of research-informed teaching and learning and the organisational structures needed to bring this about.
- Examine the role which networks can play in knowledge exchange and promoting synergies between research and practice.
- Learn from and share ideas and examples of good practices from different regions of Europe
- Widen the debate beyond the DIALOGUE project about the links between research and practice
- Make recommendations aimed at building bridges between research and practice in university lifelong learning
